

HAVE YOU

Written a Missionary LATELY?

Ask about
their work
their schedule
the culture

their experiences

who they're teaching -
remember names and
ask about them
in the future

Avoid

asking how many baptisms they've had

criticizing, even if they haven't written back to you

mentioning every single
problem at home

tales of gossip and woe

What to send
in a package

photos
recipes for simple dishes
socks
dry drink mix
seasoning packet
favorite treat

Write about
important things
happening in your life
with school, family,
and the gospel.

insights you've gained
in seminary or Sunday lessons

a scripture you've
found meaningful

testimony-building
experiences you have had

news about mutual friends
also serving missions

things you are doing
to help the missionaries
at home

blessings because of their service

*What else
can I do to support a missionary?*

Create opportunities
for growth in your own life. Serve your ward members through a Church calling
or through
acts of service.

Pray and read your
scriptures each day.
Participate in temple work with family history research or proxy baptisms. Look for opportunities to share the gospel each day.

Though missionaries love receiving letters from home, they can't answer every letter they receive. Don't be discouraged if you don't hear back regularly. Continue to write. Know that missionaries value your words and thoughts and prayers as they continue in service to the Lord.

HAVE YOU

Written a Missionary LATELY?

Ask about
their work
their schedule
the culture

their experiences

who they're teaching -
remember names and
ask about them
in the future

Avoid

asking how many
baptisms they've had

criticizing, even if they
haven't written back to you

mentioning every single
problem at home

tales of gossip and woe

What to send
in a package

photos
recipes for
simple dishes
socks
dry drink mix
seasoning packet
favorite treat

Write about
important things
happening in your life
with school, family,
and the gospel.

insights you've gained
in seminary or
Sunday lessons

a scripture you've
found meaningful

testimony-building
experiences you have had

news about mutual friends
also serving missions

things you are doing
to help the missionaries
at home

blessings because of
their service

*What else
can I do to support a
missionary?*

Create opportunities
for growth in your
own life. Serve your
ward members through
a Church calling
or through
acts of service.

Pray and read your
scriptures each day.
Participate in temple work
with family history research
or proxy baptisms. Look for
opportunities to share the
gospel each day.

Though missionaries love receiving letters from home, they can't answer every letter they receive. Don't be discouraged if you don't hear back regularly. Continue to write. Know that missionaries value your words and thoughts and prayers as they continue in service to the Lord.